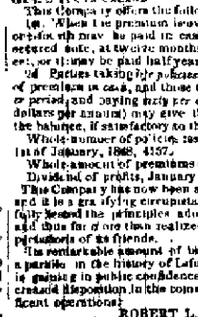
M'Alister's ALL-HEALING Ointment,



FOR THE CURE of Colds, coughs, consumption for scrofula, scurvy, and all cutaneous eruptions; for bruises, burns, ulcers, sores of all kinds, and general or local debility.

This celebrated Ointment has most striking effect upon the blood, in loosening it from all impurities, upon the glandular fluid, which lubricates the joints and thus removes stiffness, soreness & pain upon the lymphatic ganglia or glands, promoting the free and healthy secretion of the lymphatic fluid, and thus removes swelling of the glands about the neck, the groins, the axilla or under the arm about the ear and all other parts of the body.

This All-Heal ing Ointment is equally efficacious in promoting the secretions of the kidneys, relieving from retention of urine, and by restoring the tone and function of the urinary organs, thus preventing incontinence of urine. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the nervous system by curing neuralgia, St. Vitus's dance, palsy, paralyses, numbness or want of feeling or power of motion from some local or general affection of the nervous tissue. It acts with great power on all the fluids and solids of the body, and attacks disease in whatever part located, whether on the surface or internal organs.

We think the things which we know of the astounding efficacy of this justly celebrated, invaluable and worthily named "ALL-HEALING OINTMENT." The innumerable cases that have been arranged, the ten thousand sufferers relieved and cured, and the more than ten thousand hearts which have been comforted and cheered by its salubrious efficacy, testifying to the truth of all, and more than all, herein inserted.

DR. CUMMINGS'S Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla and Dock.

THE articles above named are the principal ingredients of this medicine. With these, each of which is vegetable origin are combined, designed to render them more active, and consequently more immediately effective

The Dock, or rather a species of it, now ranks as a medicinal plant, second to none of the vegetable kingdom. With the aid of a distinguished chemist, whom the proprietor has employed in the preparation of the compound, he has succeeded in overcoming the difficulty of preserving the extract of this root for any considerable length of time.

For many years the proprietor has tested in his practice the efficacy of the principal substances of the compound, and is perfectly satisfied that they possess all the properties which have been ascribed to them. Recently he conceived the idea of uniting them, which has resulted in the production of the compound. In this the ingredients are found to act in harmony, and to lose none of the qualities which they separately possess.

A larger portion of Sarsaparilla is soluble than has generally been supposed. The extract must be boiled down, and hence liable to decomposition, if procured by subjecting the root in the solution of the menstrua usually employed in extracting its virtues, for a long time without heat or any other concentrating agent. None is permitted to be used in this compound, that has not been obtained by this process and that has been less than a year in preparation.

The Compound is recommended for Scrofula, Erysipelas, Ulcerous affections, Eruptions, and Mercurial diseases. Also for the numerous maladies arising from sedentary employments, occupations of a harassing and fatiguing nature, intense application, exposure to extremes of heat and cold, overtasking the physical powers, and other abuses of the constitution, among which, are Nervous ills, Pains, Affection of the Liver, Bilious Complaints, and Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

In diseases of warm climates, with which the proprietor become familiar in his practice in Havana, some years since, the compound will prove particularly efficacious, both as a remedy and a preventative.

This medicine has been for some time in use in this city, where the proprietor has passed nearly half a century of his professional life. It was extensively prescribed by him while in practice, and it is believed to be in favor with the medical brethren in general, to whom he is known.

Prepared only by Dr. Stephen Cummings, and sold at wholesale and retail by Joshua Burgin & Co. No. 143 Middle street and Edward Mason, No. 15, Middle street—only agents for Portland.

Sold in Bangor by H. W. LADD and JOSEPH S. INGRAHAM.

John S. Sayward,—Editor.

TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1848.

☞ There was nothing of peculiar interest at the ratification meeting of the Loco party at the City Hall, on Saturday evening. Hon Hannibal Hamlin attempted the no very gracious task of showing to his political friends how easily he had been duped by Southern political leaders of the party, or of himself trying to impose a great sheet upon his party here.

On the subject of free territory he declared that at the North, all were united upon the point that slavery shall not be introduced into any newly acquired territory. The South differ from the North upon this subject. The South, as all know, had thrust their own way at the Baltimore Convention, and Mr Cass was nominated as their candidate because he agrees with the South, that the local legislatures of the territories and States shall determine this question of the admission of slavery, and not the Congress of the United States. This is the great point of difference, and this the issue made between the real friends of free territory, and those wishing it open to the introduction of slavery. Those who are in favor of free territory, say, let Congress enact a law at the outset, that slavery shall not exist in newly acquired territory, so that no person shall settle upon any new territory with any expectation of introducing or maintaining slavery there. Those wishing slavery there, say—No! Congress should not touch the subject. The Ordinance of 1787 is wrong. That matter should be left to the local legislatures. Gen Cass takes the slavery side of this question. He goes against Congress acting upon the subject. He so declaring it, so he says in his letter to the local legislatures. But Mr Hamlin professes to be a free territory man. How then, does he shape the position of Mr Cass to his own pretended position, and that of his friends? In the way Gen Cass has not said that he should Veto any act which Congress may pass, prohibiting slavery in newly acquired territory. And with this and only this, Mr Hamlin, rushing as gentle as a sucking dove, told his friends that Gen Cass was well enough on the Wilmot Proviso. If he thinks so, he was egregiously deceived, and if he thought that his declaration would carry conviction to any mind disposed to the slightest investigation, he was a very shallow and foolishly deceived himself.

There was an allusion to the Yancey resolution which was voted down, as a part of the play and machinery of the Baltimore Convention which, to us, was so grossly ridiculous as to excite only mirth unbounded. Every body knows that the Southern politicians had matters altogether to their own shape, at the Baltimore Convention, even to one of their number being allowed to throw nine votes on one question! In order, however to quiet the disturbed nerves of certain delegates of the Hannibal Hamlin stamp, who thought they might have some answer to give to their constituents a little by play was invented for the purpose of humbugging those who desired to be humbugged, and to afford a sort of screen behind which they might dodge. This by play was the minority report and resolution of Mr Yancey. This report proceeded to show that Mr Cass ought to go one step further on the slavery question. He had admitted that Congress had nothing to do with the question, that it had no right to interfere with slavery in the States, and that the Wilmot Proviso was unconstitutional; but Mr Yancey pretended that he wanted the Convention to take one step further and, declare that the people of the territories had no power over the question of slavery. Mr Cass had not said so in his letter, and it was of vital importance that it should be said by the Convention. He agreed to all that was contained in the majority report, but he required something more. His resolution was to the effect that neither Congress, or the local legislatures, or the people, except those owning slaves, had anything to do with the subject.

This resolution, of course, shared the fate it was made to meet, and was rejected, only thirty-six voting for it, not quite so many as was expected and agreed for, in order to give the matter a tolerable show of sincerity. This little bit of low cunning was foreshed forth by Mr Hamlin at the Saturday night meeting, as a proof of the strength of the Wilmot Proviso principle in the loco party at the Baltimore Convention. This is the very last gurgle of demagogueism, and if any man is so feebleminded as to be deceived by it, he is an object of the deepest pity, while he who would attempt to deceive men with so flimsy a pretence deserves only unmitigated contempt.

☞ Messrs. Pond & Thompkins in the East wing of the Market have commenced in the manufacture of Root and Pop Beer. It is quite equal if not indeed superior to any manufactured in this city or elsewhere. Whatever they undertake they do up in a good style which is sure to suit their customers.

☞ The Harmoneons will give their Farewell concert at Oldtown on this evening on which occasion they will gratify all the lovers of sweet harmony and pleasant fun. On to-morrow evening they will give a concert at Stillwater. Our friends there may rely upon a concert of a highly pleasing character.

Fairness to the Fallen

V P Coolidge. When once a person has fallen by his own folly and wickedness, others are generally too apt to tread upon him. There is this saying also, "out of sight out of mind." Many persons now think that, as this unfortunate man has been convicted of the crime of which he was charged, received punishment and is now suffering the penalty of the law, therefore society have done their duty to him. Then say they, why do any thing further about the guilty wretch, who is now sure to receive his just rewards.—

But for me, I am far from thinking that the lonely prisoner should be forgotten. When one has forfeited the right to speak for himself, it is then he needs a sympathizing fellow being to speak for him.

Lest I may be misunderstood in the object of this article, I would say that I am in no way connected with or interested for Valorous B. Coolidge. I never saw him. But do I care about the proof of his conviction, or did not with the verdict of the Jury? for such has been the evidence adduced, that we are compelled, though with sad reluctance, to be uniform to the point. Therefore it is not my wish, even if I could do it, to excite an improper sympathy for him whose rights I am attempting to defend. I shall speak with perfectly good feelings, and with impartiality, as I know none of the persons to whom the actions I may disapprove of belong.

If he be a wretch of the human family so justly suffering the penalties due to the most flagrant crime,—still that poor wretch has certain rights, and those rights ought to be regarded. I have lately read with unpleasant feelings, paragraphs in certain public prints showing as it seemed to me a disposition to taunt over and exult in the present sufferings and the powerless condition of Coolidge. I shall give some of them. I shall quote substantially correct, though perhaps not verbatim in every instance, not having the papers command. The following is from a Boston paper. "A paper a Skowhegan, Me., endeavors to make out that Coolidge is the author of a murder that occurred in Manchester N H four or five years ago. We believe Coolidge was a bad fellow, but we don't think he is the author of all the murders that have been committed in New England for twenty years past." This allusion to the Manchester murder, is very ridiculous to those who know anything about Coolidge, and must have been started merely for effect, or by some one entirely ignorant of the history of the man. Again. "Coolidge did not become a borough villain in a day." "Coolidge must ever have been a vulgar fellow—low in his tastes, and supremely selfish in his views." "All his gentility, if he ever had any, lay in costly clothing and other fashionable adornments." "Many of these articles he stole under the spells [under only incorrectly]." Several other paragraphs such as the above appeared lately I might add, equally provoking but have no room.

We should never speak ill of the dead, unless from necessity, or to promote some important good. What need of this? Stop asking? What good can come from it? Why then break the bruised reed? Why fly round into the wounds of the deepest grief? Such exercise of such a spirit is not only very ungenerous to them, but need it be told, it is disapproved of by a large part of the community. There is a certain generosity connected with the crime of which Coolidge is convicted, and that portion of it is quite as severe as the people would have it. And reading many of the bitter remarks we are crying out at this time against this severity. The conviction is now received that penalty and that is all that can justly be inflicted on him by man. We have no more right to deride or say anything to the pain or discredit of this fallen subject, than we have against any other person. But it will be said by some that he has been cured of a great crime, and that all that we can say about him how will do him no hurt. In reply to this we suggest one kind act. If he has lost his character as a man, all he has to work and try to restore it. If a pane be broken from a school-house window, wisdom teaches to replace it, and not to do like wanton boys, who, because they see one square missing, would break out all the others. I admit that the error I have been speaking of has been of general practice in the world, but it is one of the relics of barbarism—condemned by Christianity, and one which society is yet to be reformed of. In looking back only a little distance on the past, we see encouragement in view of future works of philanthropy and love. Thirty years ago instances of men's bringing shame upon themselves, and becoming powerless by strong drink, were much more common than they are now.—During such a state of almost insanity, it was not unfrequent for boys, and sometimes men, to throw dirt in their faces and bosoms,—to fire crackers in their hair,—to kick them and grossly to insult them. And we have heard of their stripping the poor victim and spreading a coat of tar over him. And the spectators instead of remonstrating against such acts, would look on and enjoy the sport. But be it to our praise, our tastes and views have so wonderfully changed since that time. Now a person could hardly be found among us, who has the feelings of a man, who could witness such a scene without raising his hand in vengeance against such worse than savage practices. At this day the man rendered helpless by strong drink is looked upon and treated with pity and kindness, at least, by all except those who make him so.

I would gladly check my feelings on this subject, but must introduce the following paragraph, said to be taken from the Germantown Telegraph, published in Pennsylvania. "Coolidge's room is only 7 feet by 4 and he never to leave it, even on Sundays. It was in fact a tomb for days in exchange, and we hope it speaks the truth; it should be a living tomb, and in it his life should be passed in that way on the principle of imprisonment for life advocated by the Telegraph would be universal one.

I must forbear on this occasion, or I shall get quite out of the narrow path I had intended to keep in, but I must say, that it is very unbecoming public editor, or indeed any of professed intelligence and advocated humanity, such manifest delight in revenge and cruelty.—Though we are often compelled in the imperfect state of being to inflict punishment on a fallen creature, yet we should always do it in the spirit of love and pity, dealing it as though as the preservation and the safety of society. We should be a nation that "bind up wounds," Christian love, as the great engine, the compulsive power, by which the heavy mass of iniquity can be thrown from the soul of the guilty, and he thereby left a renovated man.

It has been publicly said that Coolidge has no conscience and that he is non-mentally constituted. I believe it.

As it regards his conscience, I pray God that it may ere long be reached by a Divine power. But in charity I deem it to me that as a human being, a delicate and skillful man must be necessary in performing that most benevolent of all work—a work of which the angels in heaven have mind to rejoice.

Having considered the rights of the prisoner with reference to his treatment as individuals, I would now say that a desire that his present condition of mind as to humility as to a minister in view of his own future good and the well being of society.

Malden has been said since the late trial, about the oppressive operation of our law against capital crimes. Therefore we the encouraged to hope that the present Legislature will duly look to the subject, and that the benevolent work [illegible] referred to by me will speedily be done. I do not as it were the ground of mercy—but it is reasonable, and the voice of humanity pleads, that a poor ignorant weak and fragile constitution, predisposed by parentage to consumption, and made six more effeminate by previous delicate habits, should be treated differently from another of a strong and rugged constitution, and who had all the life previous been inured to coarse and muscular habits. Whilst each one should be made to feel punishment in his situation, a some principle, in that degree which will be most likely to produce to his reformation, and no more.

I must now speak a word in regard to Dame Public, and the constituted authorities—for when she shows herself in judicious and prudent, and at the same time of kind, as are but lately, and the organized bodies pierce for their self respect, and act independently according to the convictions of sound reasoning and right conscience when their sympathies were so much drawn upon to the contrary—it is then she ought to be commanded and obeyed—it is then they ought to be honored and sustained, and their dignity preserved inviolate.

A writer in a late paper published in this State, under the signature of Howard says that Coolidge was not legally convicted, in other words that he stands legally no guilty. I know not what we can better call legal evidence than that which is admitted by the court, and carries to the mind its full proof of the point in question. It is, however, true I can see the way which "Howard" took of it. He probably thought a certain witness did not have been believed, and that the testimony left out, there would have been nothing but circumstantial evidence. But with whatever motive Flint may have acted, however he may himself may have been in any part of all the dark, foul and mysterious transaction (some of which would say explore us) which was perpetrated in Waterville between Sept o ber last, a young man and the next Thursday in [illegible], a the Jury could not by think it possible [illegible] be credited in testimony directly opposing the accused. Therefore we [illegible] "Howard" unwise in bringing such an testimony [illegible] public print. Such a [illegible] tends to lessen the respect that belongs to legal authority and to weaken the arm of the law.

I now come to the most reluctant part of what I had assigned myself in this piece, which is to speak a word with regard to the friends and connections of the fallen young man. Such a very humble and not very distinguished relative of the subscriber, as he is, it is [illegible] pain to my heart to hear Dr Coolidge's name mentioned, especially not be speaking [illegible] sir, to liberate him? This was manifestly the burst of affection. I told her that perhaps the case might at some future time, but the trouble something would directly be done to ameliorate his present suffering.

I have lately heard that several Christian minds have been prompted to the more immediate duty of his present solitude. Could we but realize his lost reputation—we would all, even women and children join in a petition for his liberation this day. But we have been forced to have that he has been guilty. To great crime before his reputation can be restored only by proving his innocence or by sincere repentance and a reinstation of his soul by a crucified redeemer. And although society believe him to have been convicted of the fearful crime, yet on account of his natural amiableness his social agreeable moments his high standing as one of the first villagers in Maine, his professed and great success in it, and his [illegible] up to the fatal night they have generally felt a regard for him scarcely to have been known for any other guilty of a [illegible] in the history of our country,—a deep regret that he should [illegible] such a wrong, and an earnest prayer that he should necessitate the law to [illegible] ed upon him—a sympathy for him that will [illegible] unobtrusive yet decisive influence. Still they all the laws must be obeyed. They feel that it [illegible] not welcome one again to the bosom of society, till he is washed from that pollution.

The public is sorely sympathizing with us in happy future the amiable and affectionate sisters, and the two surviving brothers, and most gladly would they comfort them. But while expressing our regard for the friends of [illegible] ing sufferer we are reminded that we must not look at the other side of the picture. There we behold the mother sisters and two brothers of the deceased victim. It would shame but cold regard to their and hearts to resist the punishment of him who is the author of their sufferings until he shall have made a sacrifice of his sin, and become deeply sorrowful for the woes he has caused them.

We trust that the delicate conduct in such this exile from society will be considered, and that his conduct will be dictated by his penalty, and his punishment rendered as light as is consistent with the object of the law. If his friends could do free him from any further punishment by law, is there not a doubt whether it would be so well for his future and everlasting good? Penance as many times connected with penitence. Nay, we seriously fear that his freedom at this time if he could have only exercise favor, would not conduce to his present happiness. There would be a great loss of the world, an aching of heart which none but the great spiritual physician can audit. Let his friends then and let us all, implore for him behalf that sovereign power, that can wipe away all stains from every heart, and heal every sin sick soul.

AMICUS JUSTITIA ET HUMANITAS.

Locofoco Ratification Caucus.

MR EDITOR. The Democrats and their friends were called together last Saturday evening to respond to the nomination of Cass and Butler. The house was pretty well filled with Democrats and their friends and Whigs. The meeting was called to order by [illegible] Esq. and [illegible] Hamlin Esq. the gentleman announced the object of the meeting and that the nomination of Cass and Butler ought to send a thrill of enthusiasm through every democratic heart. The chairman seemed to find it easier to call for [illegible] than to get them to come forward. At any rate his own enthusiasm seemed feeble and shed very impulse and he soon gave the meeting to Hannibal Hamlin Esq. the gentleman announced the object of the meeting.

Just a glance at the [illegible] came forward, a scene on which satan probably never looked with a more [illegible] delight. Rowdies and office seekers gave way, and the whole row were seen kicking their heels in the air, and [illegible] was a prestige of the impress which is to attend the democratic party in the coming strife. Democracy is so [illegible] that heathens must give way, and next fall a Locofoco is to be swept away just as the [illegible] were swept from that [illegible].

JUST RECEIVED a NEW SUPPLY, direct from the Factory, of the

Washington Air-tight Cooking

STOVES.

Extract from the Report of the Committee of Mechanics' Fair, New York, 1847 — "The Washington Air-tight Summer and Winter Cooking Stoves, exhibited by Messrs. Stowe have been recently very much improved. They were by far the neatest exhibited of any combine beauty and utility, in a high degree; and are, without one of the very best and most elegant of the many excellent Stoves for which the city is celebrated! These Stoves have acquired a high reputation as an even baker, and for their many great conveniences." These Stoves I have also so fortunate as to secure, and am now selling at cost, to those who wish to secure the best and most Economical Stove out. One half the usual price of fuel can be saved by using these Stoves. References can be given in great numbers. Also, a great variety of other Stoves—and Sheet Iron, Copper, Zinc, Lead and Tin work of all kinds made to order by neat and experienced workmen. Enameled Sauce Pans—Japanned Waiters, &c., very low prices. in many thousand instances, have proved satisfactory, and my expectation is that they will in many thousands more.

DOCT. MANLY HARDY'S JAUNDICE BITTERS!

THE SPRING has again opened upon us, and with it a busy season which requires our fullest energies, both of body and mind, to meet. How unfortunate to be prostrated, when all is in motion, by the others upon us disease and death, while the busy scenes of life fill all minds, and while nature is putting on her loveliest attire. In the front of this formidable host of Spring diseases, stands that we have so often described, unfeeling demon, JAUNDICE. What countless millions has he slain, and how eager for more victims. We meet him in our streets at almost every step, and his cold and inexorating touch is felt more or less heavily by us all. Where then, shall we look for the Grand which shall guard us from this dreadful scourge?

At HARDY'S Drug Store,

EXCHANGE STREET.....3 doors.

near you find that friend and at a cost which is but trifling to man. Yes, for a mere trifle you shall there find a certain and speedy cure for Jaundice and all Bilious troubles, by Dr. MANLY HARDY'S which, for forty-five years, have been justly but surely working out for themselves a reputation for above all other remedies, standing unrivaled as they are today to be imitated by the vain attempts of designing men. Indeed, they never fail to secure and the subscriber has no pledges himself to refund all money paid him for B tters, if they do not effect a cure, when taken according to the directions. Beware, I caution against these hundred different kinds of "Jaundice Bitters" now before the public, the victims of which the counterfeiters will not speak, over their solitude he even shame; and will therefore only for his dear victims, every year, at this season, to make his fortune. Beware Vessels, Cargoes & Freights, of them, avoid them carefully. They may be found, and only at the establishment, but at agents in this city, Hallowell and Gardiner.

DISEASES OF THE Throat and Lungs.

COUGHS and Colds the fruitful parents of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma Pleurisy and other dangerous diseases are too often suffered to undermine the foundation of the Strongest Constitution, before the Sufferer is aware of his danger. A Physician is consulted, he administers a few Palliatives but does not attempt to search into and the Patient is consequently left to die. But why does he die? Why does he not resort to the proper remedy at once? Why does he suffer the more dear of a Practitioner rather than risk the terrible evil issues of experience? Why does he not read the following testimony. On this point no one can be more competent to speak than the afflicted themselves. Read the following testimony of

have been thoroughly established in the confidence of the afflicted. Let no one who doubts read the following facts upon which are merely samples of hundreds of the same kind.

CONSUMPTION AND AFFECTION OF THE LIVER, CURED Of Twenty Years Standing!

CITY OF NEW YORK, Nov 1 1847

This is to Certify that I [illegible] for the last twenty years, have been subject to a severe pain in the side and chest, attended with frequent attacks of pleurisy, and pronounced by several of the most eminent physicians in this city, to be in the first stages of CONSUMPTION, for the HUNGARIAN BALSAM of Life I have used by Dr Buchan Hilton's English Agent, and I am happy to say, that I have received more benefit from it than from any other medicine I have ever taken. I have been entirely relieved from the pain in my side and chest, which I had suffered with for twenty years, and from which I expected nothing but death. I have also been relieved from a distressing cough, which I had had for a long time, and which was attended with a profuse expectoration of a dark coloured matter. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the head, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the back, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the limbs, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the joints, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the muscles, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the nerves, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the bones, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the skin, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the hair, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the nails, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the teeth, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the gums, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the tongue, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the throat, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the chest, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the lungs, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the heart, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the liver, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the kidneys, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the bladder, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the stomach, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the bowels, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the intestines, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the rectum, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the anus, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the genitals, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the thighs, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the knees, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the legs, which I had had for a long time. I have also been relieved from a severe pain in the feet, which I had had for a long time.
